

The present listing of the claim replaces all past listings of the claim:

Listing of the claims

1. (Currently Amended)      A portable device for dispensing a fragrance comprising:
a housing containing a fragrance element;
at least one aperture in a side of the housing in the vicinity of one end of the housing to release the fragrance from the housing;
and means to selectively open and close the aperture which is a lid pivotally attached to the housing wherein the lid is movable from a closed position where the lid covers the aperture to seal the device to an open position where the aperture is uncovered;
wherein the one end being shaped to abut a lower end of a user's nose and aperture being close to, but not directly in contact, with the user's nose such that in use the fragrance can be inhaled through the aperture to a nasal passage of the user, ~~and wherein the lid in its open position rests against the side of the housing adjacent to the aperture such that in use the lid prevents the aperture of the device from coming into contact with a top lip of the user.~~
2. (Cancelled)
3. (Previously presented)      A device according to claim 1 wherein the one end has a catch to provide an audible "click" as the lid passes over the catch.
4. (Currently Amended)      A device according to claim 1 wherein the one end has a central recess to accommodate a septum of the user.
5. (New)      A device according to claim 1 wherein the lid in its open position rests against the side of the housing adjacent to the aperture such that in use the lid prevents the aperture of the device from coming into contact with the top lip of the user.